Reagan man with warning for President

PLEASANTON — If President Ford doesn't win the Republic nomination for President on the first ballot, Ronald Reagan is a cinch to get it, local resident Steve Oldfield said.

Oldfield will be journeying to Kansas City for the convention August 16 as an alternate on the California delegation, which is pledged entirely to Reagan.

Naturally he's partisan in his prediction of the fates of the two Republican candidates, but he had a logical reason for his prognostication.

"Reagan will win all or most of the Utah delegates," said Oldfield, who spent a few years in Utah as a student at Brigham Young University, where he took a theatre degree. "Ford will win all or most of Connecticut, and neither will have the number necessary for nomination on the first ballot."

After that, the picture will change, said Oldfield. In some states delegates whose hearts are with Reagan were told by party chairpersons to vote for Ford because that's who the "official party" is backing, said Oldfield. After they discharge their obligation to Ford on the first ballot, the swing will be to Reagan.

If Reagan fails to get the nomination, Oldfield will wind up supporting Ford, he said.

Oldfield got on the California delegation through phone call from Mike Curb, formerly a record producer in Los Angeles. Curb is a member of the delegation and was a high official in the Reagan campaign in California and felt that precinct - walking Oldfield should represent the Republicans in this area.

Oldfield, 28, knew Curb through his own work in the entertainment industry. Oldfield was a television director in Las Vegas for four years, an industry he abandonned because he felt it was too political, not in the partisan sense, but the "knowing somebody" routine.

"I really wasn't happy during that period of my life. I asked myself when was I happiest and concluded that it was the time I worked part time in a pet shop while going to college," said Oldfield. So he opened the "Something's Fishy" pet store here nearly two years ago and has been very happy since then.

Oldfield was a Democrat in his teen years, but the candidacy of Gene McCarthy in 1968 made him feel that he really didn't agree with the Democrats on issues like social welfare, so he started some soul - searching and switched parties in 1972. He's happy that Pleasanton has a predominance of Republican votes and thought it went against the usual stereotype of the young being liberal and the old conservative. He also strongly backs the Right to Life movement and its anti - abortion views and thinks the Republicans line up more solidly behind that point of view than the Democrats.

Fine craft of the restaurateur

These delicate stained glass works will highlight the interior of the Hacienda del Sol restaurant opening in about two weeks next to the police station on Main Street in Pleasanton. Designed and crafted by the owners, they decorate windows and doors of the soon-to-be operational Mexican restaurant. At top left is the the restaurant's symbol, a flaring sun in tones of reds and yellows. Single flowers decorate vertical lift windows on each side of the building, and the setting sun at bottom work brightens another part of the structure. Other designs are seen in different parts of the restaurant. Owners have also built the bar and other interior parts of the building from raw lumber, tied their own macrame hangings, and designed and crafted other parts of the restaurant as well.

Consultants say it's too dull for family life

Alameda County Bureau

The valley and south county are "describably dull environments" that contribute to "family dislocation and stress," according to a blistering report by a San Francisco consulting firm that also attacks the "lack of coordination" among public and private family services agencies.

The principal victims of family instability, child neglect and abuse once were thought to be the poor, says David Bradwell and Associates, Economic and Education Consultants, "particularly those resident in ghetto or barrio - like conditions.

"The malaise affecting the Alameda County family exists in both blue collar areas and also some of the more affluent outlying cities. "Commuting parents with a hectic round of social engagements plus pressing financial commitments, even with family incomes in excess of $25,000 per year, find the time and energy needed to raise their children committed to other activities and their children turning to drugs and alcohol as a relief from the ennui of the suburbs."

Family services, "which help prevent family disintegration," is an "incredibly complex industry" with 2,500 paid workers and nearly 8,000 volunteers.

But the $30 million in county, state, federal and private funds spent in the county needs to be changed from "the present non-system to an efficient and flexible system operating in accordance with pre-determined priorities," says Bradwell.

"It would be a misnomer to call this collection of agencies a system . A highly politicized funding process and concentrations of of service providers at locations which often times are not convenient for users does not provide the county's residents with an optimum balance of services . . ."

South county "and the Livermore/ Dublin area in particular appear to be under - supplied at the present time," he adds.

The firm thought the report would be routine, but "six months of continuous effort thoroughly disabused us of that notion."

A mingling of programs with criminal diversionary and drug and alcohol abuse programs makes it difficult for the public to get a clear picture of what services are available.

"Unfortunately, governmental efforts at dealing with (problems) of social pathology have often served to intensify rather than alleviate unwanted conditions."

"Thus longterm welfare provides, notwithstanding the efforts of the Work Incentives Program, an economic option preferable to living with an incompatible husband or being dependent on the charity of relatives."

"One of the long-term contributory factors leading to juvenile delinquency and family disruption is the dullness and lack of amenities found in many subdivisions in the county, not necessarily those housing low-income persons ... "

"It is a sad reflection on our times that the two-toned salamander and the marsh hawk are receiving more attention in the physical planning process than the children of homo sapiens," Bradwell concludes.

The agencies employ "protective services when a child's physical health and safety or mental health is endangered by neglect or abuse," says the report.

"Short-term, out-of-home" visits are used, along with homemaker and home management counselling, day care/ nursing schools and respite for parents.

Preventive steps include counseling, information and referral services, parent education, the hotline switchboard and advocacy services "to assist parents with welfare, probation, medical and other official contacts."

Teachers OK school plan in Murray

DUBLIN —Two thirds of 258 Murray School District teachers responding favor conversion of an existing district facility to solely seventh and eighth grade use.

And in an informal poll of the Citizens Advisory Committee last night, almost all members favored Dublin Elmentary as the prospective school for conversion.

The preliminary survey results are the first part of an overall survey that is now reaching some 3,000 parents in the Murray district.

Parents are asked to return the form with any comments to Applied Technology Center for Education. Results are expected to be compiled by early August.

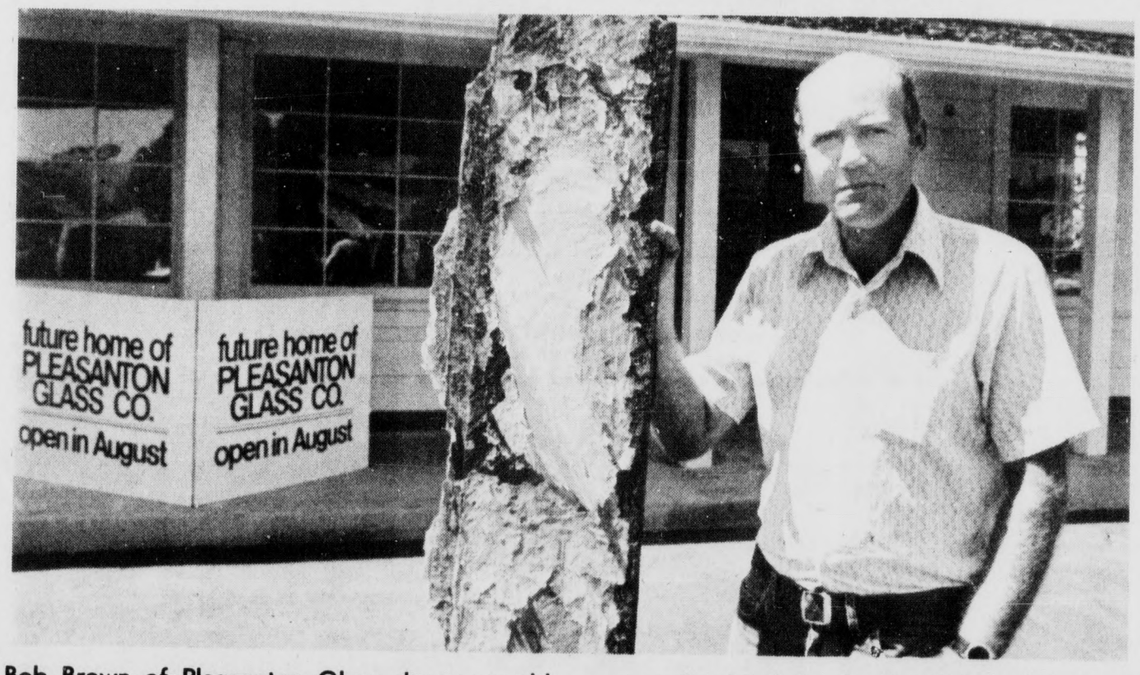
CAC members met and toured Dublin Elementary, now a K-8 facility, last night.

Many teachers filling out the survey had comments, including this one from a Dublin K-6 instructor: Apply for specia! funding to raise the level of the 7-8 program in K-8 schoools to that of the existing programs in the 7-8 schools. At present there is a great disparity in budgets, materials, equipment, aides, specialists and etc.

Donlon, Frederiksen, Murray, Nielsen, Cronin and Fallon K-6 and Donlon and Wells 7-8 teachers favored conversion.

Dublin and Lydiksen K-6 teachers and Dublin and Nielsen 7-8 teachers favored the status quo. A total of 258 surveys were sent out to teachers with 59 per cent of them responding.

All the news — and insulation, too



Bob Brown of Pleasanton Glass shows an old Redwood board from the house he's restoring for his new offices. The board is plastered with an old copy of the Pleasanton Times, circa 1886, which was used as insulation for the old boards in those days. It also shows the house is much older than he thought. He has used all the original lumber, repainted, in restoring the house. (Times Photo)

PLEASANTON — Bob Brown knew he had a story The Times would be interested in yesterday.

It was a story of how a newspaper can be the very glue of society, or at least one of the very foundations of society.

Brown, owner of Pleasanton Glass, was supervising a carpenter knocking apart the insides of the old house on First Street which will provide new quarters for the glass company. The old redwood boards in the placed yielded lots of paper on them, perhaps 10 layers of wallpaper from over the past 90 years. And there at the bottom of all that wallpaper was a copy of the Pleasanton Times, dated 1886.

"Apparently they used the newspaper on both sides of the boards as insulation. That was all they put on the boards then. The walls of the house were built no different than a barn," said Brown.

Thanks to those old copies of The Times and some newspaper from Oakland whose name is illegible, the wind didn't whistle through the cracks in those redwood walls.

Some newspapers are more than a fishwrapper.

Bastille Day slips by unnoticed

The Italians have their Columbus Day, for the Irish it's St. Patrick's Day, but the French were almost entirely neglected for their number one day yesterday, Bastille Day.

The Times checked with one of the three French restaurants in the valley, La Rochelle in Pleasanton, and learned that no special events were planned for the day.

Owner Jerry Bindi, who speaks with a slight accent, does not come from France, despite the French name on his restaurant. He was born in Italy, but he learned his cuisine skills from French chefs in the United States, which probably explains the dual nature of the menu featuring French and Italian dishes.

About the only thing planned for the day was French Onion Soup, French pastries and Crab au gratin, if any locals of French descent wanted to celebrate the day made famous during the French Revolution.

In Livermore, a few visiting French students toured the Wente Winery recently as part of a program sponsored by the Foreign Study League. They are attending language classes and visiting various Bay Area sites.

LARPD adopts new fiscal plan

LIVERMORE —The Livermore Area Recreation and Park District (LARPD) board of directors last night adopted a $1.8 million 1976-77 budget that reflects an estimated 13 per cent increase in the assessed valuation.

The final budget totals $1,807,614, some $42,000 less than the preliminary budget total. LARPD General Manager William Payne explained that the final budget is lower because the district did not collect the amount of tax monies last year it had anticipated.

Tax income the district collected this year was some $41,000 less than it had anticipated.

"We should not have counted on the total amount being carried over and in the future we won't," said Payne.

Payne stressed that the program activities have not been affected. He said the only adjustment was in reducing the contingency fund some $50,000.

The general manager expressed disappointment that the contingency fund had been reduced "I'm disappointed. I'd looked forward to using the reserve to do some major projects," said Payne.

In figuring the budget on an anticipated 13 percent increase in assessed valuation, Payne said the figures may have to be adjusted further in August when the final tax rate is set by Alameda County.

The budget reflects a total cash carryover of $106,599. But Payne explained that nearly $92,000 of that money has already been committed to recreation and parks capital programs.

Salaries and benefits account for more than $900,000, the largest chunk of the budget.

VA Hospital Volunteers reviewed

LIVERMORE — The local Veterans Administration hospital played host yesterday to some to some visitors from Washington, D.C.

As part of the year - long study on volunteers in the country's 171 VA hospitals, the high - level officials gathered to grill local VA staff — and to share morning coffee and doughnuts — at the hilltop hospital on Arroyo Road.

As in community hospitals, volunteers are a vital part of the operation of vets' hospitals. The VA is completing a study to find out how to make volunteer work more attractive and to solve some of the problems that cause useful volunteers to drop out of the program.

The visitors were impressed with Livermore's record of more than 500 people signed up on the volunteer rolls and 300 of them currently taking an active part in hospital work. They also remarked on the fact that Les Knott, former chief of voluntary services for the local hospital, had been here 20 years before his recent retirement, building community rapport that would not have been possible if there had been a high turnover in that position.

Visitors included Wilson J. Schuerholz, new national director of the Veterans Administration Voluntary Service (VAVS); Helen Lengfeld of San Francisco, founder and head of United Voluntary Services and leader of the VAVS regional Work Study Group; and Joan Padberg, R.N., nursing service administrator in the VA central office.

Also attending were Robert Schwartzberg of Washington, D.C., a national representative of B'nai B'rith; Mrs. G. Robert Giet of Carmel representing the national Daughters of the American Revolution; and Y.C. Parris and Raymond J. Sanderson, chiefs of voluntary service at the VA centers in Leavenworth, Kan., and Los Angeles.

Since the local Vets Hospital is temporarily without a voluntary services director, committee members addressed their hour's worth of questions to administrator William Fleenor.

They discovered Livermore's problems in holding onto useful volunteers are much like other hospitals': Lack of transportation to get willing workers from home to hospital. Old age taking its toll in illness and lack of energy. Students returning to school. And competition from other organizations which are also begging for volunteers.

Representatives of local volunteer agencies were on hand to explain their work. Etta Beall of Pleasanton described an unusual program where local members of the Pacific Women's Golf Association run tournaments and give golfing lessons to patients.

She also helps to run programs like the "Blue Angels," the VA equivalent of "candy - stripers" for teenagers. Founder of the local chapter of United Voluntary Services five years ago in the Valley, Mrs. Beall last month was elected a member of the national UVS board at a convention in Albany, N.Y.

Mrs. Beall's focus was on disabled patients, "the real prisoners of war" volunteer organizatios try to help.

Their assistance comes in the form of Christmas parties and recreation programs and lending a hand in the pharmacy — or just chatting with someone who comes all the way from the Sierra foothills (the Livermore hospital serves six counties) and never gets any visitors.

After their Livermore stop, the Washington visitors headed for the Martinez hospital. The study groups for each region will culminate their work in a final report to be delivered at a national VAVS meeting in Washington, D.C. in October.

Kindergarten duo

Teachers accept change

LIVERMORE — Michell School teachers Mary Hurdlow and Debbie Sandberg have given up their fight for reinstatement as a kindergarten teaching team.

The pair had been reassigned under protest to other grades in preparation for next fall's fundamental program. Hurdlow is to teach second grade, Sandberg fourth.

The two teachers yesterday accepted the 2 to 1 findings of a panel which denied a greviance they had lodged against Principal Joe Mirci. The teachers and principal had had a long standing disagreement about their progressive classroom approach.

After going through the first two stages of the Livermore Unified School District's greviance procedure, the teachers turned to a panel of review composed of teacher advocate Sheila Cooper, administrative spokesman Walt Capri and teacher Don Awtrey.

"We're going to try very hard," Hurdlow promised after hearing the panel's disappointing conclusion at a meeting yesterday in the administration building.

She added, "we felt they understood for the first time in the whole process.

The teachers said panel members had taken a "narrow view" of school district policies which could have been interpreted in many ways.

They charged their principal had reassigned them without having first tried to fill the second and fourth grade positions with teachers who are willing.

The teaching team had extensive community support in their efforts to continue teaching kindergarten together. Several dozen parents of pre-kindergarteners showed up at school board meetings to protest the change.

COVA to peg citizen aides

The coming year's study topics will be structured and assigned to committees at tonight's Congress of Valley Agencies meeting scheduled for 7 in the VCSD conference room, 7051 Dublin Blvd.

COVA's steering committee, emphasizing "citizens in the valley are strongly encouraged to participate in these study groups," has selected five topics from an originally proposed list of 10 subjects:

- Feasibility of consolidation of police services.
- Feasibility of combining fire and ambulance services.
- Consolidation of laboratory services.
- Bicycle and horse trails.
- Consideration of combining planning staffs from the cities and Alameda County.

The committee has scheduled discussion on doubling Zone 7's representation and dues on the lead group, but the zone has not taken up the topic.

While Valley Community Services District and the cities of Livermore and Pleasanton have two representatives on the committee and pay $2,000 each in annual dues, Zone 7 joined COVA with one steering committee member and $1,000 per year dues.

The zone's full board of directors in the past has balked at staying in the once controversial organization.

Carter wins Demos' nod

By WALTER R. MEARS

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Carter, the outsider who conquered the establishment, swept to the Democratic presidential nomination Wednesday night.

Carter — the given name is James Earl Jr. — won without a real contest after a 17-month campaign drafted with blueprint precision and conducted to specifications.

His last rivals were entered in Democratic National Convention competition only for show. For Carter's hour had arrived, and everybody knew it. It remained only for the soft voiced southerner to name his vice presidential choice, to be ratified at the final convention session Thursday.

Carter said during the day that he was narrowing his field of potential running mates. But he kept his thinking a secret, and took elaborate precautions to maintain it. "I don't want to say how many I've eliminated," he said.

The former Georgia governor had installed himself as the Democratic frontrunner from the outset of presidential primary competition, and he stood alone, triumphant over a field that had, at one time or another, included 14 rivals.

So Carter, 51, whose broad, gleaming smile masks a tough, calculating campaigner, gained the Democrats' greatest prize. It was testament to his adroit, intensive campaigning that his nomination was sealed at a convention marked by such harmony that more than a few delegates said they were bored.

Carter began as a virtual unknown, and ran as a critic of Washington, and as a rival of the senior Democrats who have wielded party power from the Senate for nearly a generation.

He came out of the Deep South, the Plains, Ga., school board, the state Senate, the statehouse in Atlanta. He did it with a close-knit cadre of campaign managers and aides, and without the counsel or assistance of the party's elders and power brokers.

He turned back to Washington, and to the Senate, for his vice president, saying he needed to add that dimension to his ticket. But he gave no advance inkling of his choice — and unlike most of his predecessors, he didn't have to clear it with anyone.

"No one can speak for me and I've told no one," Carter said earlier in the day.

He said only that he had begun a process of elimination from the field of six senators he publicly listed as prospects. Carter insisted during the day that he had not made a decision. While he campaigned as the candidate who would never tell a lie, few Democrats believed that.

Crouch to appear ..... in concert

Andrae Crouch, soul gospel artist, will headline a concert on July 29 at the Concord Pavilion at 7 p.m.

Crouch, nominated for an Image Award this year, has shown that contemporary gospel music is a free art form. It bridges the gap between gospel and rock, destroying the idea that only traditional gospel music has soul.

More that 90 per cent of Crouch's lyrics and music are his own. and the songs are executed with feeling. Because Crouch has either experienced or been exposed to the things about which the songs are written, he identifies with the masses, and particularly young audiences.

Some of his songs have been recorded by Elvis Presley, The Imperials, The Statesmen and Pat Boone.

Crouch got his professional start in 1965 when he and several musicians from his father's church in California began to make appearances as the Disciples.

Matt Parvis and Julie Marquis are featured in the rock musical "Godspell," now playing at the Baldwin Park Theater in Concord. The show runs Thursdays through Sundays at 8:30 p.m. throughout July. For further information and tickets call 671-3065.

Lilly of the Valley

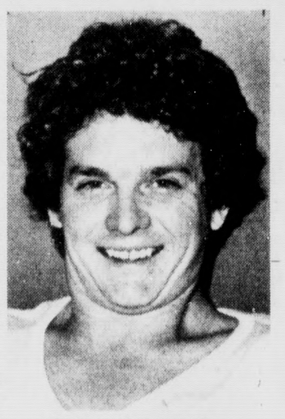
Someone of the Bicentennial Committee dropped the ball in regard to their responsibility on the day of the Bicentennial Parade. This led to an interesting, unusual and fun day for this individual.

It seems a certain party was to pick up Spike Jones, Jr. at the airport, get him to Pleasanton so he could serve as grand marshal of the Bicentennial Parade and see to it that he was properly taken care of during the day.

My day in the life of Spike Jones, Jr. began while on the balcony of the hotel taking pictures with my one eyed photographer. I felt a tap on the shoulder and the words, "I would like you to meet Spike Jones, Jr." The intros were over and she continued. "Would you mind seeing that he gets down to Aquatic Park for the award ceremonies?"

The parade was over and we headed for the Aquatic Park for activities scheduled there until award time. "Can we see if I can find my clothes?" asks Spike of the driver.

Seems the person who picked Spike up at the airport had his belongings in their car. His extra paraphenalia was needed for his performances at the Fairgrounds the next night.



Spike Jones, Jr.

I assured Spike that we would definitely locate the missing articles before showtime. As we combed Pleasanton in my UNair-conditioned, dirty, gritty car, he looked for the vehicle he was picked up in while we both fought the heat of the day. Unsuccessful in spotting the car, we headed for the Aquatic Center for all the activity — none! Nor was the missing person anywhere to be seen.

I reassured Spike we would find his belongings and not to panic as I thought I knew where this individual lived and that we could drive by the house to see if she were home. Sure enough, as we drove down the street, Spike immediately spotted the auto which transported him from the airport to Pleasanton. We pulled into the driveway and out of the house dashes the responsibile body cooly dressed and saying, "Oh, I was just on my way out to find you." Transfer of Spike to responsible party was made with the suggestion she take him to his motel so he could have a couple of hours rest and cool off before his duty of presenting awards at the park.

I retreated to a cool spot and a cool drink until awards time scheduled for 4 p.m.

Upon returning for the presentations, I was immediately approached by this responsibile party again with a pack of cigarettes and the message, "These are Spike's. He wants to see you after the awards. I'm going home."

Before I had time to recover from the short snappy message she was gone and once again poor Spike was left in my care.

We ended up at the old homestead off the Foothills to jump into the pool for a swim before passing out from the heat of the day — 103 degree

Spike didn't have a bathing suit with him, but we managed to dig up a couple of my son's to give him a choice. He said he didn't want to swim, but would just sit and watch. Before we knew it, Spike jumping into the pool to help us out in a game of volley ball.

Now completely exhausted, Spike decided he wanted nothing but to head for bed. He informed us he had not been to sleep in 24 hours. We accommodated his wishes by returning him to his motel with plans for an 11 a.m. interview the next day.

The interveiw was another interesting and brief encounter with Spike. By the way, I have intereviewed many of the performers at the Fairgrounds, but Spike is the only one that called after it appeared in the paper and thanked me. He's a neat guy.

Our interesting conversations, shared jokes and frustrations of the day led Spike to being like an old friend to us now, not just one of those performers at the Fairgrounds who happened to pick the entertainment field for his livelihood.

We saw his show and enjoyed it — a slap stick sense of humor which may or may not have seen its day. That's for Spike, Jr. to decide.

The next day I found out from a reliable source that the Bicentennial Committee had arranged for Spike to be taken to lunch, dinner or whatever and if they there was no limousine service from the motel he could rent a car for the day at the expense of the committee.

Frankly, I don't think Spike had a meal all day! Sorry, Spike, next time you might be heading for Pleasanton, let ME know and I'll plan a day with a little class, -- gladly at my expense! Regardless of it all, I think Spike was a heck of a good sport, putting up with the heat of the day, the uncertainty of what was expected of him and perhaps most of all my family and myself.

Marjorie Lord joins Chabot theater

By REINA WHITNEY

Marjorie Lord, best remembered for her role as Danny Thomas' "wife" in the long-running TV show "Make Room For Daddy," will be the star of the upcoming Chabot College production, "40 Carats," for the next two weekends (July 16-17 and July 23-24).

This is a new experiment for the College Campus in inviting a "name" to perform with the student actors. Miss Lord, a veteran of screen, stage and television, will join the all-college amateur cast bringing with her a wealth of experience, not only as an actress, but as a director, producer and writer.

She still retains her same bouncy charm and the warm vivacious personality for which she is best remembered. Although seen on TV most recently doing commercials, she has been anything but idle.

In fact, she comes to Chabot College after just having completed the same play with a different cast at Cabrillo College in Santa Cruz Working with college students, then, is not a new experience for Marjorie Lord. She has even directed college plays while her daughter (known professionally as Ann Archer) was attending Claremont College in Southern California.

Although she is the mother of two grown children (her son is an airline pilot), she still retains her same youthful appearance. This "youthful maturity" will lend well to her portrayal of the lead in "40 Carats" which deals with a 40-year-old woman who is married to a 42-year-old man when she falls in love with a 22-year-old boy, who is described as more "mature" than the husband.

It is a romantic comedy and, as Miss Lord describes it, a play that deals with many sensitive feelings, but in a humorous way. She quoted the famous director Frank Capra in describing "comedy" as "an intellectual approach to drama in an amusing way."

After having experienced the long-run shows, both on stage and television, and doing a country-wide circuit of dinner theatre for as long as 34 weeks at a time, she is ready to start staying closer to home.

A native of San Francisco, she started acting professionaly at the age of 15. New York then, as now, is still the best place for theatrical training, according to Miss Lord. Her New York experience helped her act in many different roles. Her first Broadway part was in a play starring Dame Judith Anderson.

Although Marjorie Lord feels the actor of yesteryear was more disciplined and showed a more professional attitude toward his profession, she feels today's actor is basically better trained and is required to be more versatile in his approach to the many acting parts with which he is presented. He must also utilize more projection and technique in pleasing today's audiences, according to Miss Lord.

She says she has great respect for the college little theatre groups and encourages them to never stop studying. She, with Charlton Heston, envies the actor that does it for fun, as she quoted him as saying, "The happy actor is the one that has it as an avocation and not a vocation."

Working with different casts is nothing new to this seasoned performer. She claims to have acted with seven different leading men while performing in "Anniversary Waltz" 700 consecutive times.

It was while doing "Anniversa Waltz" in the San Francisco that she was given the part of Danny Thomas' wife, after he caught her performance. She says she acquired "two husbands', as a result of this show, because it was here that she also met her real husband, member of the Hale Department Store family.

Miss Lord seemed quite serious about her intentions to turn to directing exclusively. She feels there is more satisfaction to seeing the entire play develop under your leadership, rather than working on just one part. A good director doesn't always get the credit the star does, but he is the one to keep the actors in tow and is vital to the outcome of the play.

With the charm she exhibited to her young fellow co-stars, while speaking to them in such an a warm, appealing manner, we are inclined to believe Marjorie Lord's successes all lie before her. Having the opportunity of viewing such an experienced professional so close to home is sure to delight her admiring audiences.

The vivacious Marjorie Lord of 'Make Room for Daddy' fame, appears in a Chabot College production of 'Forty Carats' beginning this weekend.

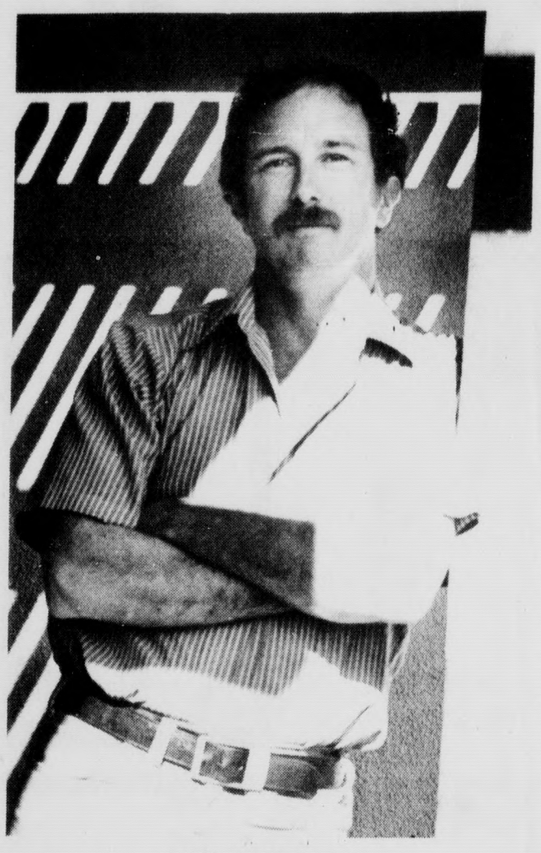
'George M' is coming

The play's the thing for director



Glenn Dubose

By JEAN McKENNA

The rare ambition of the famous George M. Cohan drove him to write, produce, compose, direct and star in dozens of theater productions, made him the country's leading producer before he was forty, earned him the affectionate nickname, "Mr. Broadway," and a place in history as the father of the American musical theater.

His dramatic rise to fame, from Vaudeville to Broadway, is portrayed in the colorful and robust musical, "George M," the Pleasanton Playhouse selection for its August production at the Alameda County Fairgrounds Amphitheater.

"I'm not headed for Hollywood or Broadway, and I haven't got any of George M's driving ambition," confesses Glenn DuBose who will direct the Playhouse musical. "You might say I'm less into the 'business' of theater and more interested in theater for its own sake.

"I enjoy directing under a variety of circumstances, and watching the actors in a play, or my students, grow. I once worked for CBS-TV as an associate producer and director, but that power structure where I wanted to be for the rest of my life."

Modest about his string of credits and his reputation as one of the most promising young directors in the Bay Area, Glenn admits that he is very satisfied with his work now. He teaches fall and winter quarters at Chabot College, and has just finished directing the spring Cabrillo College Festival at Santa Cruz which featured professionals like Marjorie Lord and Vivian Vance.

Glenn is also currently directing the long run of "Babes in Arms" at the Showcase Theater in San Francisco. Other recent credits include Contra Costa Musical Theater's "Stop the World" and "Guys and Dolls," Diablo Light Opera Company's "1776" and "Promenade," Chabot College's "I Can Get It for You Wholesale" which earned a regional award, Cask and Mask's "The Skin of of Our Teeth" at Livermore.

The biggest challenge facing Glenn and his "George M" cast will be that of sustaining an upbeat and fast - paced entertainment. The life story of George M. Cohan is told in the music he composed, with 20 different settings, vaudeville acts and such popular numbers as "You're a Grand Old Flag," "Yankee Doodle Dandy," "Give my Regards to Broadway," "Over There" and "Harrigan."

Paul Devore, as the irascible George M onstage throughout the production, will be called upon to play a varied, changing and growing role. Infinitely charming, yet not always loveable, the George M who lived for the theater alone must capture the audience with the irresistible magic of his music.

A garment fashioned in many decorative techniques by deft Livermore hands as a community project is among the artistic treasures featured in a Sunday afternoon program in honor of the LAA gallery's second anniversary. Model is Carolyn Ramsey.

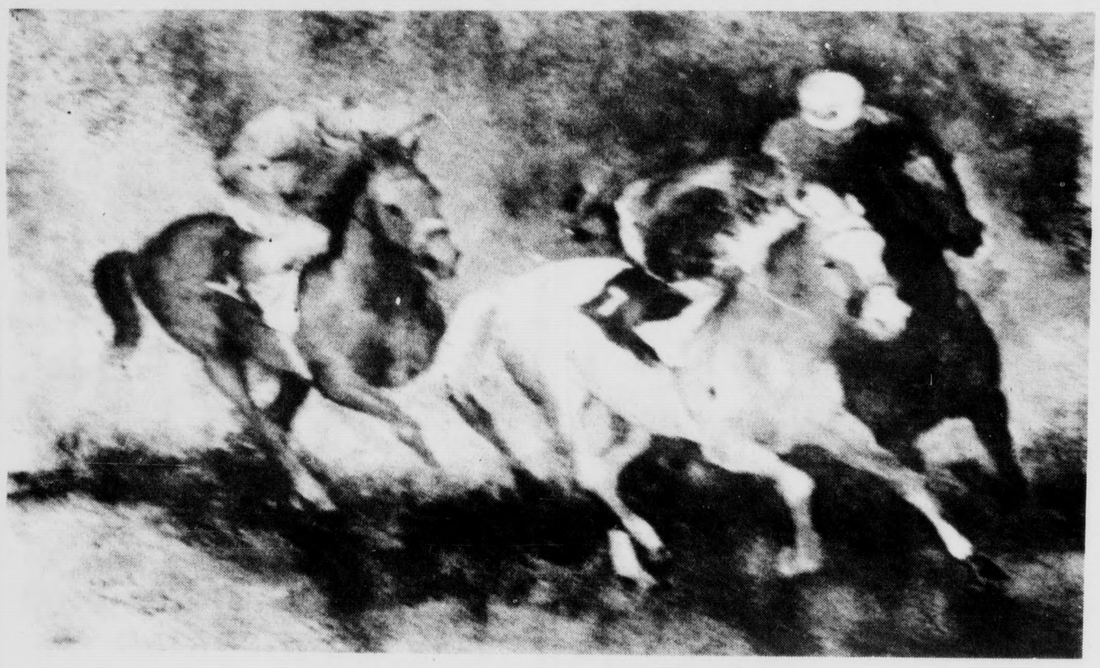
Drama workshop

Ever aspire to be a clown, a mimic or a puppeteer?

Connie Foster, a free - lance Christian entertainer with a drama degree from San Francisco State University, will conduct a drama workshop at Parkway Baptist Church in Dublin Saturday, July 17.

The study sessions, for youth and adults, include costuming, make-up, pantomime, set design and puppetry. Participants will learn how to find sources for plays, skits, Christian drama and church presentations.

The workshop begins at 9 a.m. at Parkway's Evans Hall.



The fair's only finish

In the year of cancelled post times, the Alameda County Fair Board of Directors selected for its annual purchase award 'Seven to Win,' a watercolor by Mabel Palmer of Sebastopol. Attendance and sales at the fine arts exhibit matched last year's records, despite the reduced total attendance at the county fair. When votes by the public were tallied for the most popular paintings, the winners were 'Rolling On,' by Bill Hanks of San Lorenzo; 'Okaasan,' by Harold Takahashi of Hayward; and 'Alameda County Fair: White Pigs,' by Dorcus Moulton of Berkeley. Jade Fon's 'San Francisco Bay' captured the honor for out-of-county entries.

Anniversary celebration of Livermore's art heritage set

The second anniversary of the Livermore Art Association Gallery and Livermore History Center, both located in the Carnegie Building, will be celebrated with a family - style picnic and program on "Old Arts and Crafts in Livermore."

The Sunday celebration July 18 at Carnegie Park is open to the public at no charge from noon to 5 p.m. Bring a picnic lunch.

The gallery will feature a new collection of works inside, while artists of all ages will demonstrate arts and crafts of the past and present on the park grounds. Artisans will be at work creating finger puppets, pottery, zipper art, charcoal sketches, reverse painted glass, oils and watercolors.

Throughout the afternoon Merilyn Calhoun and Wilma Myers will be showing slides in the lower level of the Carnegie Building. Mrs. Calhoun has photographed hand - crafted family treasures preserved in Livermore such as intricate tatting, crocheted doillies, weaving, painted china, rock gardens, paintings and embroidery.

Mrs. Myers will explain the antique process of making textiles, from the shearing of the sheep, to the spinning, dyeing and weaving of the wool. Slides of quilting and off-loom weaving techniques are part of her program.

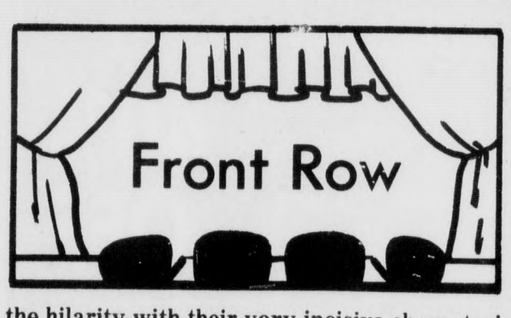
At the History Center of the Livermore Heritage Guild many historical pictures of Old Livermore will be on display. Dale Mooney will also exhibit and speak on his collection of old bottles.

For schedule of events contact the gallery at 447-9927 Thursday through Saturday from 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Sacred concert at Dublin

A program of sacred music will be presented by the Bob Jones University Ensemble Saturday, July 17 at the First Baptist Church of Dublin-San Ramon.

The musicians will offer a combination of quartet, trio, duet and solo vocal selections specially adapted for the ensemble. In recognition of the Bicentennial, a patriotic section will be included in the 7:30 p.m. program which is open to the public.



By AL FISCHER

Civic Arts Repertory has an unquestioned hit on its hands!

"Of Thee I Sing" is a musical - comedy that couldn't possibly be more appropriate for this year.

With the premiere performances of last weekend behind them, the cast and crew of the Walnut Creek-based company can be expected to iron out and refine the uneven spots that cropped up last Friday night.

Directed by Robert Logan, the production runs weekends through August 8 and is a "must see" by all valley aficionados of good community theater.

The starring role, that of John P. Wintergreen, is taken by Nick Thomas, well known to valleyites for his work with Pleasanton Playhouse— most recently as Tevye in "Fiddler on the Roof."

Thomas' casting as Wintergreen is genius.

It is obvious Nick loves a good audience and he responds completely with consistently good and at-ease delivery of some very funny lines. He's not a bad hoofer or singer, either. But Nick is not the whole show— just a big part of it.

Some very superb characterizations are done around him, not the least of which is Susan Norin's Diana Devereaux— the beauty queen hopeful who is spurned by Wintergreen in favor of "just plain Mary Turner," the characterization of a very skilled professional named Jacqui Lee.

And you need not be forgiven if "Diana" reminds you of that now famous Capitol Hill Elizabeth.....or if "Mary" brings memories of some recent First Ladies.

Miss Lee, who has the best voice of all the performers, is a veteran of Woodminster musicals and the Contra Costa Music Theatre. As a collegian, one of her earliest rofes was in the very same "Of Thee I Sing."

John Rossello as the scheming and pugnacious campaign organizeriand Gordon Irving as the (Who's he?) vice president ("Alexander Throttlebottom— old what's his name") add to the hilarity with their very incisive characterizations.

It is always exciting to see two or three supporting actors or actresses who excel— performers who obviously have "star" qualities.

In this class are Ivy Gibson, a member of the ensemble who has a brief open scene role as the leggy chambermaid. Miss Gibson recently came to the area from New York City. She appeared in numerous productions in the East, including "The Impossible Years" with Tom Ewell, and has also worked in films with Frank Sinatra in "The Detective" and "Up the Down Staircase" with Sandy Dennis.

John Gilkerson rouses the audience in the late scenes as the French Ambassador who flits about defending the voluptuous Miss Devereaux. One of his nose-to-nose routines with Thomas is wildly funny.

Terry Bohrer as "Sam Jenkins" is another with a small role but with definite starring potential. Terry returns after a three year absence, having previously appeared in "Ring Round the Moon," and "You're a Good Man, Charley Brown."

Among the great tunes in the show, written by George and Ira Gershwin, are Love is Sweeping the Country, Love Walked In, Who Cares, I'm Biding My Time and the title song.

The production is slated Friday and Saturday at the Civic Arts Repertory theater on Locust in Walnut Creek with curtain at 8:30.

Other play dates are July 23, 24, 30 and 31 and August 6,7, 13 and 14. The August 8 date is a 2:30 matinee.

By KAREN BOYLE

For his ninetieth Broadway show, producer David Merrick has mixed up a failed concoction in "The Baker's Wife," playing its world premiere engagement at the Curran Theatre through Aug. 14.

The show has all the ingredients for success: the story, based on the film "La Femme du Boulanger" that was one of the Ten Best Films in 1940; the lead actor, Topol, a star of international acclaim best known for his portrayal of Tevye the milkman in the film and London stage versions of "Fiddler on the Roof"; the composer - lyricist, the talented Stephen Schwartz whose credits include "Pippin," "Godspell," and "The Magic Show"; and the irrepressible producer, David Merrick, whose productions over the years have netted some twenty New York Drama Critics' Awards and twenty Tony Awards.

But "The Baker's Wife" never comes up to expectations.

The story is set in Concorde, France, a little town that has been six weeks without a baker, and eagerly awaits the arrival of Aimable (Topol).

Aimable, the villagers quickly and none too politely observe, has brought with him a beautiful young wife, Genevieve (Patti LuPone), young enough to be his daughter.

Dominique (Kurt Peterson), a young stud and the mayor's chauffeur, decides instantly that he's the one for Genevieve, concluding she is starved for passion and bored of the comforts of Aimable's company.

He is not wrong. In practically no time at all, Geneviecve agrees to run off with Dominique, forsaking her kindly old husband who worships the ground she walks on.

Aimable pretends that Genevieve has merely trapsed off in the middle of the night to visit her mother, whom she cannot stand. But in truth he is so wounded by Genevieve's departure that he can no longer bake.

All of which upsets the villagers who have been titillated by the romance, but who are once again without bread, the French staff of life.

The mayor (Keene Curtis) calls a town meeting to address the plight. They decide to fetch back the baker's wife so that Aimable might have inspiration to return to work.

But in the meantime, the lovers' tryst has turned cold. Dominique may be a stud, but he is boring. ("The fire is there," Genevieve sings, "but where is the warmth?") She longs for the comforting tenderness of Aimable — no great lover, perhaps, but a good man.

So casting an admiring glance at her beautiful but dumb Prince Charming, she hot-foots it back to Aimable who makes her pay penance for his forgiveness.

The moral: the pleasures of the flesh are fleeting, and a good man is hard to find.

Not a bad moral as morals go, but production falls flat.

The music, especially the first number "Welcome to Concorde," fails to stir; the choreography is nondescript if not nonexistent; and the orchestra so overpowers the performers it is hard to hear the lyrics.

The first act starts slowly, with interest peaking as the curtain falls. But enthusiasm wanes in the second act when the play is drawn to a too-swift conclusion.

This production marks Topol's American stage debut. He is not helped by the lackluster script and slapstick direction.

But he does achieve the highlight of the performance near the conclusion of the play with his song "If I Have to Live Alone."

Patti LuPone is a convincing Genevieve. But her strong, clear voice is often drowned out by the orchestra.

Keene Curtis is marvelous as the village mayor whose greatest concern is retriving the Citroen in which his chauffeur and the baker's wife have fled.

"The Baker's Wife" is the Civic Light Opera's second offering this season, the world premiere engagement of the production.

The musical is scheduled to move to New York's Broadway. Merrick and company will have to alter their recipe for "The Baker's Wife" if it is to succeed there.

For Thursday, July 15, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't employ coy or clever methods to get others to do your bidding today. They'll produce anything but favorable results.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Daydreaming is not the same as being visionary. Don't indulge in wishful thinking today and feel you're on the way to solving the world's problems.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Should you be too uncertain about your aims today you'll accomplish little of value. Have definite purposes in mind. You can pull off a victory.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Others today are likely to determine your productivity. If your cohorts are lazy, you'll probably lay down your tools, too.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're still not at your best in the commercial world. Watch yourself every step of the way if buying, selling or trading.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Important decisions should not be made for expeditious reasons today. Weigh matters carefully, then come up with what's best for all.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's the kind of day when good intentions about health or diet matters could go by the boards. Try to keep your worthwhile resolutions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today, avoid being pretentious in any manner. Such action will have an effect exactly opposite of what you hope for.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your attention span is very short today. You must concentrate or have another check your work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Guard against reporting on information where you are uncertain of the facts. You could unintentionally hurt someone.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) One who borrowed and who is still not current on her indebtedness may try to touch you up again. Keep her record in mind.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You want some things at present, but apparently not badly enough to make the sacrifice needed to attain them.

The ostrich is supposed to stick his head in the sand and assume that makes him invisible.

North's pass over West's two spades was an example of what we have called the "Ostrich bid".

As North explained later, he had no defense and passed in the hope that East and West would not go on. Then after East did bid four spades North decided to take the save at five diamonds.

The defense took two spades and shifted to a heart. Later South played ace and a low club from dummy and managed to get out for down two.

Needless to say, South was most unhappy about the whole thing. The fact that he had made a good play in clubs was no consolation at all.

Suppose North had bid three diamonds. East would have gone on to four spades and South would have passed. North would have passed also and his side would wind up with a profit since East just can't make his spade game.

Ask the Jacobys

A California reader wants to know if both sides are given a 300-point bonus in progressive bridge if each one has made one game in the course of the round.

The answer is that when progressive bridge is played with both scores counted each side gets the bonus. If you are playing progressive bridge with the net score only counted, the 300-point bonuses cancel one another.

Confident Wolfe advances

COON RAPIDS, Minn. —A confident Vic Wolfe defeated his first opponent in match play yesterday to remain among the leaders in the United States Public Links Golf Championship at the Municipal Course here.

"I think I've got a good chance of winning the title now," the former Livermore High and Chabot College athlete said.

Wolfe, from Livermore's Las Positas Golf Course, defeated Tom Jacobson of Illinois, two-up in the first round of match play. Wolfe fired a 74 and Jacobson a 76.

Despite his victory Wolfe wasn't pleased with his overall play.

"I didn't putt that well," he admitted. "It wasn't as good as I did the first two days."

Wolfe felt the weather might have had a factor in his play.

"It was really a swirling wind out there," he said. "That made it hard to concentrate on each hole."

The Livermore golfer had to fight from behind to beat Jacobson. He birdied the 12th and 13th holes to finally go ahead of the Illinois golfer.

"It was just hard to get going because of that wind," Wolfe went on. "I didn't know the course very well and so I had some problems.

"Also it was very humid so I became a little tired. I'm used to playing in wind but not this type."

Jeff Thomas of Boise, Idaho, and Pete Jacobi, of Dayton, Ohio, were 1-2 in the tournament after Tuesday's competition but both lost yesterday.

Thomas was beaten by Frank Sexton of Barboursville, West Virgina, two and one, and Jacobi lost to Terry Witte of Phoenix, two and one.

Wolfe was tied for third in the competition Tuesday so his prospects improved as a result of Jacobi and Thomas losing.

"I really can't say I'm in," Wolfe said. "There are still 32 golfers involved in the match play."

Wolfe will meet Thomas Proben of Detroit in this morning's match play. Proben defeated Bill Gundersen of Woodinville, Washington, six and five yesterday. If Wolfe wins he will play this afternoon.

Smoke zones set for SR high schools

DANVILLE — When school resumes in September, high school administrators hope students will take their cigarette breaks in the open.

For the first time, Monte Vista and California high schools will have official areas where students can smoke.

The idea is to take the smokers out of the rest rooms as a courtesy to nonsmokers.

Monte Vista High School, Danville, will have smoking areas for students at the south end of the gym outside the boys' entrance and between the social studies and math buildings.

Designated smoking areas at California High School, San Ramon, are at the south end of the portables adjacent to the parking lot and the lower quad area between the business and science departments.

Students are not allowed to smoke in any enclosed areas at either school.

Students caught smoking outside the designated areas can be suspended at both high schools.

The success of the smoking areas will be evaluated every six months. If they are not effective, the school board can abolish them.

Designated smoking areas have already been implemented at San Ramon High School, Danville.

School employes meet Aug. 3

The California School Employes Association's (CSEA) 50th annual conference will begin Tuesday, August 3, at the Sacramento Convention Center, according to Executive Director Richard C. Bartlett.

Reginald Alleyne, chairman of the Educational Employment Relations Board (EERB), will deliver a keynote speech to the estimated 2,000 delegates and guests.

Alleyne, former attorney with the National Labor Relations Board, is an experienced arbitrator in both private and public sector disputes.

CSEA's 73,000 members consist of bus drivers, secretaries, custodians, instructional aides, maintenance and food service workers, and other support personnel. Bill D. Ellis of Indio is president of the organization.

Events will include the association's annual election of state officers; presentation of 1976 CSEA School Employee of the Year awards at the Thursday awards luncheon, and budget and strategy sessions.

For a lot less, you can now enjoy a lot more.

—Edward Levinson
Columbus, Ohio
